More On Terri Bea-Sopher

Writer Terri Bea-Sopher is no stranger to scripting award-winning projects! In 2012 Sopher was nominated for a Stellar Award and received a Black Essence Award for music and production of her gospel stage play, GRANDMA'S HANDS which was adapted to film in 2009 and won an award in the Los Angeles Film Festival in 2010. This film was also featured in the 2010 Kingdomwood Film Festival in Atlanta, GA. In 2014 her film, Amberpark—The Beginning, won BEST FEATURE in Ohio at the Greater Cleveland Urban Film Festival and has been seen in Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Texas, Florida, California and Pennsylvania. In 2014 the film earned a spot in the International Christian Film Festival and an Honorable Mention at the Kingdomwood Film Festival.

The list of achievements continues! In 2015 Sopher won Best Screenplay at the Urban Mediamakers Film Festival for her newest film, "The Unfortunate Faces of Portia Dupree". For the script "Enemy Witnesses" she won Best Screenplay, 2nd runner-up and Fan Favorite for Best Screenplay 2016. She wrote and produced a gospel comedy that earned her Best Producer for her film, "Sister Able's Closet" in 2017. In 2018 she won Best Short Film at the Christian Family Film Festival for "The Call" and recently won Best Screenplay in the Orlando Film Festival for her script, "The Whispering".

Sopher's speaker credits are diverse within the conference circuit as well. As a comedian, she has opened for such artists as Def Comedy's "Chocolate" and other notables. She is a versatile actress, hostess, and entertainer, hosting her own show on WCVG 1320 and 91.7 FM HD@ in San Antonio, Texas. While Sopher's achievements in film, stage, and music are numerous, her greatest joy is any opportunity to minister across the country. She's often spoken at diversity conferences being the sole religious representation present.
