

Relationship Scientist Ryeal Simms is a cognitive neuropsychologist, behaviorist, motivational speaker and the leading authority on the neuroscience of relationships worldwide.

A licensed and certified relationship coach, Counselor/Marriage facilitator, body language expert with the Relationship Coaching Institute and the Prepare/Enrich Program, Ryeal's passion is analyzing the neuroscience of love by dissecting why we do what we do from an eco-bio-psycho-social-spiritual point of view. Ryeal is also a member the GGI network of Neuroscience researchers and the resident relationship instructor at the OptiMind Neuroscience Coaching & Training Institute (ONCTI.com) where he integrates the disciplines of cognitive neuropsychology, biology, anthropology and body language to teach youth, adults and corporations how to make wise personal and professional relationship choices.

Formerly the relationship expert for Stevie Wonder's Hollywood radio station, KJLH, Ryeal has also co-hosted London's Love Talks, is a recurring relationship expert on the U.K.'s Real Love Show and has regularly appeared on Africa's Lets Talk About It, Virgin Island's Real Talk with Narcisse & Company and L.A.'s Talk Live's Planet Love Match and Raibon Radio.

Ryeal has also been featured in numerous publications and media programs, including Essence Magazine and National Public Radio and has served as the official relationship coach for the Tavis Smiley Foundation and Hershe Group. He also works as a relationship advisor for the entertainment industry, speaks at correctional centers, colleges and churches and is penning his book series on the neuroscience of relationships.
